You should be aware that interactions on social media with us may, depending on the particular social media platform you choose and on the settings you choose on each such platform that relate to privacy and security, be immediately publicly visible to all users of the platform.

Social media platforms are not bound by our Privacy Policy and may each have their own privacy policies or statements or similar (Platform Privacy Policies). Platform Privacy Policies vary from platform to platform. The rights that the various social platforms reserve for themselves as stated in their applicable Platform Privacy Policies in relation to information you provide when you are interacting with us via such platforms are likely to be different to our policies as set out in this document. We recommend that when interacting with us via social media, you avoid disclosing Personal Information in a way that makes it publicly available. We publish social media “House Rules”, available via our various social media pages, which contain more information about recommended “dos and don’ts” in relation to disclosing Personal Information on social media. We recommend that you read our social media “House Rules”.

In addition, platform providers’ terms of use, terms of service or rules and the like (Terms of Use) and their Platform Privacy Policies are likely to be governed by the laws of a jurisdiction other than Australia. Privacy laws that apply to the platform operators and to their obligations in respect of information you provide are likely to be different to Australian privacy laws. The legal protections afforded to you by such laws may be substantively different to those available under applicable Australian laws.

Your use of social media platforms will also be governed by the Terms of Use published from time to time by the various platform providers. We accept no responsibility for the Terms of Use or Platform Privacy Policies of the social media platforms you use to interact with us.

We recommend that, before using social media to interact with us, you carefully read and familiarise yourself with the social media platform provider’s Terms of Use and Platform Privacy Policies and the privacy and security settings available for that platform and select the settings that you are comfortable with.

If the social media platform provider amends or updates its Terms of Use or its Platform Privacy Policies, carefully review the proposed changes to understand how they may affect your continuing use of the platform.
